Recognitions

- Ross Domke had an accident before Christmas and almost lost his arm. He is thankful for the recovery and return to his pharmacist position at the Vibra Hospital. He is also thankful for his son handling his real estate business, and his daughter happily settled in North Carolina. Ross donated $100 to Shan, $100 to Paul Harris, and $100 to the club.
- Rick Hill posted his 60th birthday picture with two lovely granddaughters in Facebook. For not showing his birthday present (a 911 Porsche) in the picture, he was fined $200.

Fundraiser Card Game

The card game was won by Cindy Fisher, who donated her winning of $35 to Providence International.

Program

The program was presented by Robert (Bud) Hancock, CEO of Providence International. Providence was founded in 2000 by Mr. Hancock, a career business/ministry developer. It is a value led micro-finance and small business development non-profit (501c3) organization designed to accelerate development of lifetime livelihoods that free families from poverty to forge a future with hope, and to provide the opportunity for at-risk people to develop their God-given potential and become productive contributing citizens.

April Potter (L) and Bud Hancock (R)

Three primary people groups are the focus of service:

- A select network of non-profit organizations of like vision, values, and mission.
- Unemployed and underemployed at-risk people living on less than $2 per day
- Business partner developers who create jobs and capital to serve the at-risk unemployed

Shasta County has 23% higher youth poverty rate than national average. Youth life expectancy rate is 4 ½ years less. The most vulnerable youth population is 18 – 21 years age youths exiting from foster care, and probation juvenile hall at age 18. Seven out of 10 these youths become incarcerated without intervention. The majority of at risk youth do not have a single mature adult relationship. Aberrant behaviors, childhood trauma, substance abuse and nonproductive digital addiction arise from absence of hope and limited opportunities.

April Potter is a shining example of Provident International's work. April was a misguided youth. At age 14, and was put into prison for alcohol and drug addiction. She married at age 17, and entered into an abusive relationship full of domestic violence. She was jailed again because of drug addiction. All three of her children were taken away from her. Inside the prison, she was saved by the chaplain's wife, who offered care and love. Subsequently, she recovered from drug addiction. With the help of Providence International, she is now independent, and owns a business as a professional photographer.

Providence International was also granted the use of 15 acres of riverfront property in South Redding by the City of Redding. The organization is offering jobs for youth in riverfront cleanup and vegetable gardening.
