Program - Presidential Inauguration Trip Done In 72 Hours

Doug and Heather Wright gave us their hour-by-hour account of their whirlwind trip to Washington D.C. to take part in this year's presidential Inauguration. Prompted by a long-time friend, Doug and Heather decided within days of the inauguration to make the trip. With tickets secured through Doug LaMalfa's office, airfare purchased and the grandparents in place as baby sitters, they were off.

As they moved from event to event in the city, a common thread was "how do we get there from here?" because of all the barricades in place. Their first morning there offered them a nice surprise in being in the right place at the right time to see the President Elect and Mrs. Trump emerge from the Blair house (traditional housing for recent President-Elects on the eve of their inaugurations), whereupon they jumped into their motorcade and sped away.

Doug and Heather Wright

Their first walking destination was the Capital building where they had "plenty" of time to get to Doug LaMalfa's office to get their tickets for the inauguration activities. On the way there they were able to hear the Mormon Tabernacle Choir rehearsing - a major highlight of their trip. Between the long walk and the long lines at the Capitol, they ended up with 30 minutes to spare in securing their tickets.

Other highlights:

- Lots of walking
- Unexpected tickets and unusual access to the Presidential Inaugural Prayer Breakfast. The Trumps and Clintons were expected to be at this event, but none of them showed.
- Lots of walking
- They were close enough to the stage to be able to see the new President being sworn in.
- Lots of walking
- A great spot to view the parade once they migrated to their favorite pizza place in the city
- Lots of walking

Doug and Heather, thanks for sharing your adventure with us!
