Today's Program - The New Veterans Outpatient Clinic

President Greg introduced today's speaker by citing a remembrance of a visit he had while in high school to the offices of Woodward and Nichols where he met a young Les Melburg watering the office plants. Greg decided to stay in construction at the time instead of pursuing a career in architecture :).

Les gave some background to the intent of this and the many other veterans clinics currently being built around the country. You may remember several years ago the Veterans Administration fell under scrutiny for its poor care of our veterans. The mandated budget to correct this with new clinics has grown to about $13 billion currently.

Maurice Johannessen looks on as Les Melburg gives details on the new clinic.

An artist's rendering of the new clinic in Redding which is slated to open December of 2020.

With a focus on honoring our veterans, the architectural approach with these new clinics has been to create a feeling of hospitality and less of a clinical feel. Patients will experience an open, window-filled space while waiting to be seen, and will be taken to single room where multiple caregivers will come to the individual.

Props were given to Maurice Johannessen for his tireless work in seeing the vision of this clinic come to fruition.
